

Pamela Meacher

A master painter and author, Pamela was exposed to the profound mysteries and beauty of the natural world as a child in England. This helped her form a deep appreciation for flowers and faeries. Pamela's botanical watercolour paintings often include birds, butterflies and woodland sprites, which harkens back to the Victorian Arts and Crafts movement thus evoking a sense of innocence and calm.

A board member for 10 years and one of the founding members of the Canadian Wildflower Society, Pamela was responsible for creating their original logo. She is also a member in good standing with The Botanical Artists of Canada, The American Society of Botanical Artists and The Pine Ridge Arts Association. Pamela served on the Board of the Scugog Council for the Arts before relocating to Barrie, Ontario.

Share my passion for native wildflowers through botanical watercolour paintings that have a touch of mystery from the unseen world of faeries, woodland sprites and elves.
